

Lucas E. Morel

Lucas E. Morel is the Lewis G. John Term Professor and Acting Head of the Politics Department at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Virginia, where he has taught since 1999. He holds a Ph.D. in political science from Claremont Graduate School (1994). His dissertation was on “The Role of Religion in Abraham Lincoln’s Statesmanship.” He previously taught at John Brown University and the University of Arkansas-Fayetteville.

Dr. Morel also teaches in the Masters Program in American History and Government at Ashland University in Ashland, Ohio; has conducted history workshops for high school teachers throughout the country; and co-written 10 lessons on antebellum and Civil War America and the modern Civil Rights Movement for the EDSITEment website of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

His teaching and research interests include American government, political theory, Abraham Lincoln, and black American politics. Dr. Morel is past president of the Abraham Lincoln Institute, board member of the Abraham Lincoln Association, a trustee of the Supreme Court Historical Society, and a consultant on an upcoming exhibit at the Library of Congress in 2012 commemorating the sesquicentennial of the American Civil War.

He is the author of Lincoln’s Sacred Effort: Defining Religion’s Role in American Self-Government (Lexington Books, 2000) and editor of Ralph Ellison and the Raft of Hope: A Political Companion to “Invisible Man” (University Press of Kentucky, 2004). He has also written for the Lincoln Lore, Los Angeles Times, Christian Science Monitor, Journal of Supreme Court History, First Things, and Richmond Times-Dispatch. Dr. Morel has been a guest commentator on CNN’s TalkBack Live and Glenn Beck’s Founders’ Fridays, and New Hampshire, Virginia, and Wisconsin Public Radio. His current book project is entitled “Lincoln, Race, and the Fragile American Republic.”