NOAH FELDMAN

Professor of Law
New York University School of Law

Noah Feldman is Professor of Law at the New York University School of Law where he specializes in constitutional studies, with particular emphasis on the relationship between law and religion, constitutional design, and the history of legal theory.

Dr. Feldman was named a Carnegie Scholar for 2005-06. He is a contributing writer for the New York Times Magazine and an adjunct senior fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations.

In 2004-05, he was a visiting professor at the Yale and Harvard Law Schools and a fellow of the Whitney Humanities Center. In 2003 he served as senior constitutional advisor to the Coalition Provisional Authority in Iraq, and subsequently advised members of the Iraqi Governing Council on the drafting of the Transitional Administrative Law or interim constitution.

Dr. Feldman joined the New York University School of Law faculty in fall 2001 from Harvard University, where he was a Junior Fellow of the Society of Fellows. Before that he served as a law clerk to Justice David H. Souter of the U.S. Supreme Court (1998-99) and to Chief Judge Harry T. Edwards of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit (1997-98).

He received his A.B. summa cum laude in Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations from Harvard University in 1992. Selected as a Rhodes Scholar, he earned a D.Phil. in Islamic Thought from Oxford University in 1994. He received his J.D. from Yale Law School in 1997, serving as Book Reviews Editor of the Yale Law Journal.

He is the author of three books: Divided By God: America's Church-State Problem and What We Should Do About It (Farrar, Straus & Giroux 2005); What We Owe Iraq: War and the Ethics of Nation building (Princeton University Press 2004); and After Jihad: America and the Struggle for Islamic Democracy (Farrar, Straus & Giroux 2003).

Dr. Feldman also litigates constitutional cases before the federal courts, and lectures on law, religion, and the Middle East.
